

News Resources on the Internet

Besides accessing Internet newspapers, you will also be able to find activities and reports related to newspapers on the Internet. There are content providers on the Internet that offer news information. Such websites often aggregate news from different providers and provide the reader with a one-stop place to read all the articles. Other resources related to the news articles are provided.

Example: If there is an article covering an incident that happened in India, then there could be links providing background information about India and hyperlinks to other stories that happened there.
